The trains this morning will bring many more thousands of people to the Capital of Ohio, to join the unnumbered multitudes already here who will take part in the funeral solemnities of the Martyr President.

There has never before been witnessed here such a sight. Sadness is depicted on every countenance, grief pervades all hearts, and

MATRIMONIAL.-There were forty-two marriage licenses issued from the Probate Court of this county during the month of April, 1865.

POLICE COURT.-There was not a single case before the Mayor yesterday morning, except that of a wife who sued out a peace warrant against her husband, and had hin bound over to the next term of the Court of Common Pleas. The calaboose was en tirely empty of occupants.

PRETTY much all day yesterday and last night, rain fell in large quantities, which will, doubtless, much interfere with the turnout of people from the surrounding country to participate in the Funeral Obsequies to-day.

THE ATHENEUM.-This place is still the great center of attraction, on account of the Miltonian Tableaux on exhibition there. Last night they were witnessed by another large and gratified assembly. Tonight they will be exhibited again. Of all 30th, 1865, at the Church, corner of Rich the sights presented in our city for a long time, these scenes from the great poem of Milton's Paradise Lost, carry off the palm. Here full stretch is given to the imagination, and the most beautiful, as well as the most revolting scenes, are wonderfully and graphically combined. Every one who loves to contemplate the beautiful and sublime, should visit this exhibition.

THE ENGLISH OPERA TROUPE.-To-night is the last night of the English Opera Troupe, at which Mr. S. C. Campbell takes a farewell benefit. The beautiful opera of the "Rose of Castile," which was so handsomely rendered last night, will be presented again to-night.

We hope our citizens who are fond of good music and first class operatic entertainments, will embrace this opportunity of enjoying this last performance for the present of this talented troupe in our city We wish them in other places the success they so richly deserve.

DECORATIONS OF THE STAR CLOTHING EMPORIUM .- One of the handsomest and most splendidly decorated establishments is that of Marcus Childs in the Neil House building. The four large show windows in front are draped with black cloth, beautifully arranged and interspersed with various emblems of mourning. Flags are displayed wreathed in dark drapery, and portraits of the late President are to be seen, surrounded with the emblems of regret and sorrow. Appropriate mottoes likewise grace the front of Mr. Childs' establishment and the whole view presented is one of the finest and most expressive we have yet

The Absurdities of Prejudice. Inconsistency is a weakness of human nature, as unreasonable as it is absurd and indefensible. Many people, for instance, have a horror of purchasing anything that is extensively advertised, no matter what may be its merits. Advertising is, in their opinion, a gigantic game of speculation, or s medium of puffing worthless goods. The Samburg Port wine is largely advertised, be-cause the proprietor, Mr. A. Speer, is desirous that the public become acquainted with it. He does not, however, expect people to purchase it selely on his recommendation. He wishes them to judge for themselves, and he has instructed his agents and all who retail his wipe that if it should not prove equal to what he claims for it, to return the money. All he wants is to give it s trial. Nothing can be fairer than this. The Samburg Port wine is a pure, unadulterated juice of the Oporto Samburg Port grape now being cultivated in this country by Mr. Speer. It is valuable for family use and for its tonic and invigorating propervigorates the system. In fashionable circle it has become the favorite table-wine.

Druggists are agents for this wine .- In BEAUTIPUL PORTRAITS of Washington and Edward Everett are in many collections, but in the home of the person once afflicte with that terrible disease, CATARRE, nov cured by the use of Dr. D. H. Seelye's Liquid

"THE Apostle," said the Elder, "was noved by many kinds of doctrine." "Yes," replied Mrs. Partington, looking over her peutacles at the Elder, "there's where he was wrong. What did he want to try so many kinds of doctrine for when Pinkeron's Wahoo and Calisaya Bitters would have kept him perfectly regular." The Eider confessed the thing had never struck him in that light before, and the old lady was going on to elucidate further, when her attention was attracted by Ike, who was trying to pour some Bitters down the cat's roat with a tunnel. apr29-d2w

CONNUBIAL FELICITY AND BLISS-HOW WIVES Should be Treated.—Nothing is more susceptible of harm "from the storms of this rude world" than the delicate nature of woman. The husband remains hearty and robust in sersons when the frail and delicate wife droops like a rudely handled sensitive plant. "The storm that leaves the oak un-scathed uproots the flower." If your wife is alling, if sickness prostrates her, if maternal solicitude and are wear upon her, remember you are the Heaven cointed guardian of her health. SYMPTOMS:

The symptoms of Catarrh as they generally appear are at first very slight. Persons find they have ecid, that they have frequent attacks, and are nore sensitive to the changes of temperature. In his condition, the nose may be dry, or a slight dishange, thin an acrid, afterwards becoming thick and dhesive. As the dishance heromes given in the dishance heromes acrons the dishance heromes are supported by this condition, the nose may be dry, or a slight dischance, thin an acrid, afterwards becoming thick and adhesive. As the discass becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The secretions are offensive; causing a bad breath; the voice is thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of the smell is lessended or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place.—Another common and important symptom of Catarrhis, that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a thick or slimy mucus, which has fallen down from the head during the night. When this takes place the person may be sure that his disease is on its way to the lungs, and should lose no time in arresting it.

The above are but a few of the many Catarrhisymptones.

A single Bottle will last a month-To be used three times a day.

Johnston Surrenders to Sherman. His Terms the Same as Lee's.

WAR DEPARTMENT, Washington, April 28-3 P. M.

Major General Dix: A dispatch from General Grant, dated at Raleigh, 10 P. M. April 26, states: Johnston surrendered the forces in his command, embracing all from here to the Chattahoochie, to General Sherman on the basis agreed upon between Lee and myself for the army of Northern Virginia. Secretary of War.

Booth-Further Details of the Capture.

New York, April 28.—It appears by the Herald's account that Col. Baker sent Lieut. Col. Conger and Lieut. Baker, of his detectives, with Lieut. Doherty and his cavalry. On reaching Garrett's larm they were told by a son of Garrett that there were two men in the barn. This was at 2 A. M. Wednesday. Proceeding to the barn Lieut. Baker was sent forward and called upon Booth to come out, give up his arms and surrender, and that young Garrett would go into the barn to receive the arms. Upon entering the barn Booth exclaimed, "Get out of here; you have betrayed me." A colloquy then ensued, of which the following is the substance: Lieut. Baker—You must give up your arms and surrender. We have come to take you a prisoner, and will treat you as a prisoner. We will give you five minutes to surrender, or we will burn the barn. Booth-Who are you, and what do you want? Instructions had been given to Lieut. Baker not to disclose the character of those who were in pursuit. Lieut, Baker-We want you. We intend to take you a prisoner.

Booth—This is a hard case. It may be that I am to be taken by my friends.

After some further calloquy of this sort Booth, seemingly convinced that he was in he country may be afforded facilities for taking the the toils of Federal soldiers, said: "Give me a chance for my life. I am a cripple, with one leg. Withdraw your men 100 yards from the barn, and I will come out and fight you." Lieut. Baker-We did not come here to fight, but to take you prisoner. You must give up your arms and surrender. Booth-Let me have time to consider. A conversation in the barn between Booth and Harrold then took place, which was not overheard by the party outside. In about ifteen or twenty minutes Booth called out: 'Who are you? I could have picked off half a dozen of your men while we were talking. I could have shot you two or three times, but I don't want to kill anybody." Lieut. Baker-Then give up your arms and surrender. We have come here to take

Booth-I will never surrender. I will never be taken alive. Lieut. Baker—If you don't do so immeditely we will set fire to the barn. Booth-Well, my brave boys, prepare a tretcher for me. After this a conversation took place between Booth and Harrold, during which Booth was heard to say, "You damned coward; will you leave me now? But go, go. I don't want you to stay with me." He then addressed the party outside and said:

Another talk here occurred between Booth and Harrold, in which it appeared hat the latter was begging to be allowed to take out some arms with him, and Booth was heard to say, "Go away from me. I lon't want anything more to do with you.' Harrold then came to the door and asked to e let out. Lieut, Baker said-No, hand out your Harrold replied—I have none.

Lieut. Baker—Yes you have. You carried a carbine when you came here. You nust hand it out. Booth--He has no arms. They are all mine." Upon my word as a gentleman he has no arms. All that we have belong to me. Lieut. Baker then approached the door; Harrold thrust out his hands and was pulled from the door, tied and placed in charge of a guard. Col. Conger was then satisfied that further parley with Booth was vain, and proceeding to the other side of the barn he pulled out a wisp of hay and lighted it. Within a few minutes the blazing hay light-ed up the inside of the barn. Booth was discovered leaning on a crutch, which he threw aside, and, with a carbine in his hands, came toward the side where the fire had been kindled, paused, looked at the fire a moment, and then started toward the door. When about the middle of the barn be was shot. Col. Conger and Lieut. Baker at once entered the barn and brought Booth

After identification, by order of the War epartment, the body was privately inter-ed in the clothing which was upon it. The Herald's correspondent says: The parley with Booth lasted a long while; that Booth told Lieutenant Doherty he had a bead drawn on him and could shoot him if ne chose; that Booth could see those out-ide plainly, while they could not see him inside; that when the fire was lighted Booth could be seen, and then Lleutenant Doh-erty ordered Sergeant Corbit to fire, which he did, through one of the crevices. Booth was armed with two six-barreled and one seven-barreled revolver. When the party started to return with the body, Harrold refused to walk, when a rope was fastened to his neck and the other end of it to a saddle of one of the cavalrymen. So soon as a horse could be procured he was mounted. The World's correspondent says: It is learned that Harrold joined Booth just after the assassination, and it is believed brought the horse into the alley. The following is the statement of Ser-geant Boston Corbit: On Tuesday afternoon my superior offier, Lieut. Edward Doherty, received in-formation that two persons auswering to the description of Booth and his accomolice Harrold, were concealed in a barn on the place of Henry Garrett, about three miles from Port Royal, in the direction of Bowling Green. There we captured a man named Jett, who ferried Booth and his com-panions across the Potomac. At first he lenied knowing about the matter, but when threatened with death if he did not reveal e spot where the assassins were secreted, told us where they could be found, and he told us where they could be found, and piloted us to the place.

Booth and Harrold reached the barn about dusk on Tuesday evening; the barn was at once surrounded by our cavalry, and some of our party engaged in conversation with Booth from the outside. He was commanded to surrender several times, but made no reply to the demand, save that "If you want me you must take me." When first asked to surrender he asked, "Who do tyou take me for?" A short time after, in response to the question as to whether there response to the question as to whether there was any body else with him in the barn, he stated that he was the only person in the was any body else with min in the barth, he stated that he was the only person in the building; that his companion Harrold had taken another direction and was beyond the reach of capture. At three o'clock, or a little after, the barn was fired. Before the flames were kindled Booth had the advantage of us in respect to light. He could see us but we could notsee him. But after that the tables were turned against him; we could see him plainly, but could not be seen by him. The flames appeared to confuse him, and he made a spring toward the door as if to attempt to force his way out. As he passed by one of the crevices in the barn I fired at him. I aimed at his body. I did not want to kill him. I took deliberate aim at his shoulder, but my aim was too high. The ball struck him in the head, just below the right ear, and passing through, came out about an inch above the left ear. I think he stooped to pick up something just as I fired. That may probably account for his receiving the ball in the head. I was not over eight or ten yards distant from him when I fired. I was afraid that it I did not wound him he would kill some of our men. After he was wounded I went into the barn. Booth was lying in a reclining position on the floor. I asked him, "Where are you wounded?" He replied in a feeble voice, his eye balls glaring with a peculiar brilliancy, "In the head. You have finished me." He vas then carried out of the burning building into the open air, where he died about two hours and a half afterwards. About an hour before he breathed his last he prayed for us to shoot him through the heart, and thus end his misery. His sufferings appeared to be intense.

Booth, although he could have killed several of our party, seemed to be airaid to fire. Mine was the only shot fired on either side. When he fell he had in his hand a six-barreled revolver, and at feet was lying a seven-shooter, which he dropped after he was wounded. Two other revolvers were also near him. He declare that the arms belonged to him, and that Harrold had nothing to do with the murder. We gave him brandy, and four men went in search of a doctor, whom we found some four miles from the scene of the occurrence;

The Excitement in Washington-Harrold Beginning to Realize His Situation.

Washington, April 28.—The excitement which prevailed in this city yesterday has considerably subsided. While all regret that the assassin, owing to rashness among the soldiers engaged in the capture, was not taken alive, they at the same time felt grateful that the murderer has paid the but when the doctor arrived Booth was dy-grateful that the murderer has paid the ling. He did not talk much after receiving penalty of his crime. Had he been brought his wound. When asked if he had anything to the Washington navy yard alive nothing to say, he replied, "I die for my country," could have withstood the fury of the exan'l asked those standing by to tell his crited thousands. What disposition was mother so. He died not denying his crime. made of Booth's body after the autopsy mother so. pon it, it is impossible to ascertain; hat a fitting disposal, in keeping with his gnominious career, was made, is certain. Harrold, who has been exhibiting great stoicism since his capture, now appears to realize the awful position in which he is placed, and through the day has given way to frequent weeping. He is quite young, and his appearance would indicate him to be not over twenty. Some time ago he was an applicant for the position of Surgeon's Steward in the Potomac flotille, but was nsuccessful.

Terrible Accident on the Mississippi. CAIRO, April 28 .- The steamer Sultana. rom New Orleans the evening of the 21st, arrived at Vicksburg with boilers leaking badly. She remained there three hours re pairing, taking on 1,996 Federal soldiers and 350 officers, lately released from Ca-hawba and Andersonville prisons. She arrived at Memphis last evening. After cooling she proceeded about 2 A. M., and about that time, when 7 miles above Memphis, blew up, immediately taking fire and ourning to the water's edge. Of 2.156 souls aboard not more than 700 had been rescued. Five hundred rescued are now in hospitals, nd 200 or 300 uninjured at the diers' Home. Captain Mason, of the Sultana, is supposed lost. At 4 o'clock this morning the river in front of Memphis was covered with soldiers struggling for life, many badly scalded. Boats mmediately went to their rescue, and are still engaged in picking them up. Gen. Washburne immediately organized a board of officers to investigate the affair, and they are now at work doing so. No further par-ticulars received.

suicide of a Supposed Conspirator. BALTIMORE, April 28.—A well known citizen of Baltimore committed suicide last Monday a short distance from the city, by shooting himself with a pistol. No cause could be assigned for the rash act, except that he had recently seemed depressed and melancholy. Subsequent events have in-duced suspicion that he was in some way to his point while on his way to washing—metallicity. Sussequent events have inthen addressed the party outside and said:
"There is a man here who wants to come out."

Lieut, Baker—Then let him hand out his arms and come out.

General Barlow, Quartermaster General; and there are many reports in connection. with it, some facts which it is de prudent to publish at present.

Wilson's Raid. CINCINNATI, April 28 .- At a public meeting at Dayton yesterday, it was resolved that the body of Booth be taken to midocean and there buried. Late Georgia papers give full accounts of Wilson's great raid. After defeating Forest at Selma, destroying arsenals and manufactories there, Wilson moved eastward, capturing Montgomery, West Point, Coambus and Macon, scattering the militia on all sides, ruining the only remaining railroad, breaking up machine shops, de-stroying military stores, rendering the man-ufacture of materials for future campaigns

News from Grant-He Calls Upon

Johnston to Surrender. FORTRESS MONROE, April 27 .- A steam arrived here this morning from Morehead City, bringing advices from Newbern that Gen. Grant had effectually put an end to the armistice agreed upon between Sherman and Johnston. Grant had given John ston up to 6 o'clock yesterday (Wednesday morning to surrender his army. The con litions are unknown. Gen. Grant announce ed that after that hour hostilities would at once be resumed. To this Gen. Johnston is said to have replied that if Jefferson Davis and the leading General officers of the Conederacy were pardoned, and permission given them to leave the country, he would e authorized to accept the terms proposed.

The Gold Market.

NEW YORK, April 28.-Gold continues weak. The speculative feeling is dull and the demand chiefly confined to Custom louse purposes. The possibility of a severe panic occurring, incident upon the cotton news of the close of the war, produces an expectation that some of the gold balances sent from the United States to London during the war for supposed greater safety, will be drawn home again, producing an affux of specie and a consequent decline in the premium on gold. New York, April 28 .- Gold to-night

Boston, April 28.—A suit brought by Mr. Leonard Sturtevant against A. H. Allen, for illegal arrest and imprisonment, which has been on trial here for some days in the Superior Court, closed this morning the jury rendering a verdict in favor of Mr. Sturtevant for $32,500. At the breaking out of the war Mr. S. was doing business in New Orleans, and upon his coming North was arrested and lodged in jail upon charges of disloyalty preferred against him by Mr.

Washington, April 28.—A Cabinet meeting to-day considered International questions likely to arise from the conspiracy which is alleged to have exsive ramifications. President Johnson was loudly cheered day while passing through the streets. Booth's body has been placed where i will never been seen by mortal eye again.
The Post's special says a Pennsylvania delegation, headed by Commissioner Lewis, called on the President, making the most radical address yet delivered. The Presi-dent replied, repeating his conviction that the rebel leaders should be punished and he masses of the people forgiven.
